Protect and preserve your irreplaceable collection

Private vault solutions for the entertainment industry

Protect and preserve your irreplaceable collection

You manage an irreplaceable collection of commercial and personal items, a collection that requires a long-term preservation solution. You need a partner with a proven history of unparalleled discretion, security, chain of custody, and archiving expertise. You need an advisor with the capability to deliver on an archive strategy that takes into account appropriate climate controls, geographic separation, space, and feature designs that will meet your needs – whether you envision a working archive, a secure personal gallery space, or simple long-term storage. You need guidance from experts who are skilled in the preservation of the types of assets you need to protect, such as audio- or videotape, film media, hard drives, costumes, props, sets, or fine art, to ensure that the personal and commercial value of your legacy is safeguarded.

What if you could...

- Have a single organization that can provide end-to-end long-term archive and preservation solutions with the global scale, logistics capabilities, and archival expertise to safely and securely catalog, move, and store any type of media or cultural artifact.
- Design your own private vault solution – down to the smallest detail of the racks, lighting, and access control – housed in facilities that are the safest currently available to civilians.

Customizable private vaults, moving and logistics solutions for the world's most discerning organizations and individuals

The highest security standards

The Iron Mountain name is synonymous with security. Whether you're worried about hackers, natural disasters, or media obsolescence, or about managing redundancy, access control, or clear chain of custody for each and every item in your archive, we can provide unmatched peace of mind. Onsite staff and closed-circuit TV, combined with the convenience of card access and full access control, are some of the many reasons our clients choose Iron Mountain to store their most precious assets.

Logistical expertise and global scale

Iron Mountain is the only global provider of private vault services with the scale and experience to mobilize the trucks, personnel, equipment, and industry-leading processes needed to make large transitions from point of origin to storage happen quickly and with reliably excellent results.

The highest archive standards available for virtually any type of asset

From dry pipe sprinkler systems to temperature-controlled environments for specific media types, Iron Mountain sets the most rigorous standards for archiving. Our archival experts can advise on solutions for both physical and digital media and physical artworks, such as musical instruments, fine arts, fashion, props, sets, and costumes.

The Iron Mountain name is synonymous with security.

Customizable to your specifications

Whether you have a single irreplaceable item or a legacy spanning decades, Iron Mountain can scale to move, organize, and archive anything from anywhere into an environment that meets your exact specifications. Either by our team of award-winning media experts or your own archivist team, your space can be configured for active archive work as well as storage, including but not limited to the following:

- > Custom racking
- > Integrated workspaces
- > Dimensions
- > Climate control options
- > Lighting
- > Internet

Expertise onsite for working archives: digital production and storage, chain of custody, and more

On-premises or in close proximity, our media engineers, state-of-the-art digitization and post-production studio and digital storage solutions are also available to our vault clients, so you can continue your archive work while your assets need never leave the safety of Iron Mountain. We are experts at chain of custody and can provide inventory management services as needed, including condition reporting if required.

Location
